

Think Dots

Literary Devices

Click on the tabs below to get the instructions for each of 5 sets of Think Dots. The following literary devices are covered on the think dots:

alliteration, idiom, metaphor, simile, and onomatopoeia. The number of dots on the sides coincides with the levels of the revised Bloom's Taxonomy,

1. remembering
2. understanding
3. applying
- 4.. analyzing
5. evaluating
6. creating

Print each of the following 5 pages and cut apart the sections; then mount each and laminate on sturdy paper.

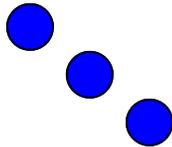

Find three examples of alliteration in the novel you are reading for literature circles or in any other novel.

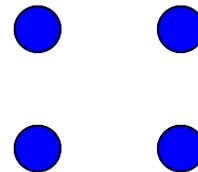

Make a list of 10 alliteration pairs using our vocabulary list for one of the words in each pair.

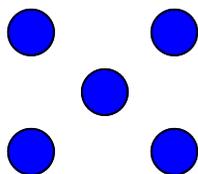

Write a letter to your teacher or to another adult (parent, grandparent) that uses two examples of alliteration.

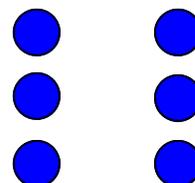

Write a poem that uses alliteration.

Think of an exaggerated alliterative phrase or sentence. Create a picture that illustrates it.

Write a short story using three examples of alliteration.

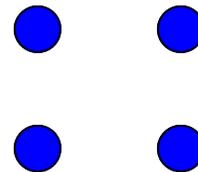

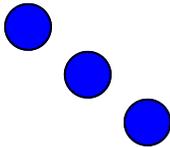

Find two examples of a metaphor in the novel you are reading for literature circles or another novel. Record them and cite the book. ●

Find a metaphor in a novel. Explain what it means and tell why you think it was used.

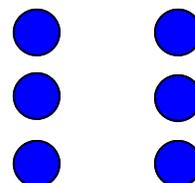

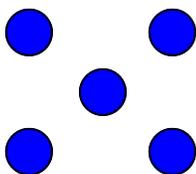

Write a metaphor to describe something.

Write a short dialog that uses a metaphor. Can be in the form of a comic strip.

Create a picture that illustrates a metaphor.

Write a short story that includes two metaphors.

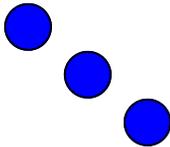

Find two examples of a simile in a novel you are reading.
Record them and cite the book.

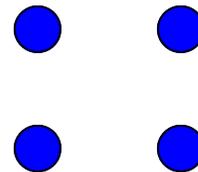

Find a simile in a novel. Explain what it means and tell why you think it was used.

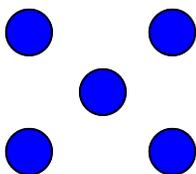

Write a simile to describe something.

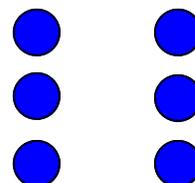

Write a short dialog that uses a simile.
Can be in the form of a comic strip.

Create a picture that illustrates a simile.

Write a short story
That includes two simile.

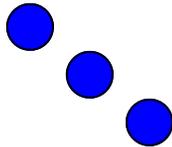

Find an example of onomatopoeia in a novel you are reading. Record it and site the book.

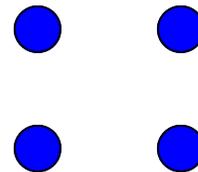

Make a list of all the examples of onomatopoeia that you can think of (at least 15).

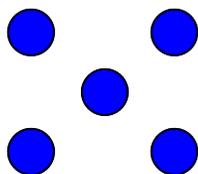

Write a paragraph describing an experience you have had. Use two or more examples of onomatopoeia.

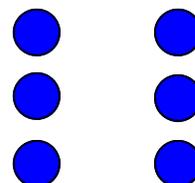

Write a poem that uses onomatopoeia.

Create a picture that illustrates onomatopoeia.

Write a short story that includes two or more examples of onomatopoeia.

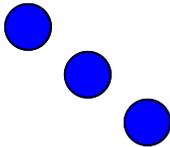

Find an example of an idiom in a something you are reading. Record it and site the source.

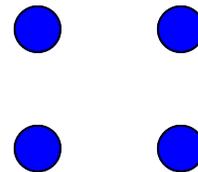

Make a list of idioms you can think of; ask others if you can't come up with at least 8 on your own.

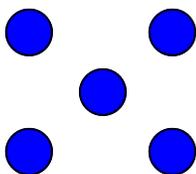

Write 2 sentences using idioms to describe a situation.

Choose an idiom and research and explain its origin.

Create a funny picture that illustrates an idiom.

Write a short story that includes two or more idioms.

